

Epicor Global Work Policy

Table of Contents

1.0 Overview	3
2.0 Definitions.....	3
3.0 Purpose.....	3
4.0 Responsibilities.....	4
5.0 Office Set-up & Equipment.....	4
6.0 Ongoing Expenses.....	5
7.0 Work Hours	5
8.0 Requests to Transition from a Hybrid Worker to a Remote Worker	6
9.0 Safety and Security.....	6
10.0 Illness/Injuries	6
11.0 Insurance/Taxes	7
12.0 Dependent Care.....	7
13.0 Exceptions	7
14.0 Revision History	7
15.0 Disclaimer/Copyright.....	7
16.0 Addendum: Safety Checklist for Home Office	9

1.0 Overview

Epicor (the “Company”) seeks to fulfill its business objectives while balancing the needs of its workforce by offering work arrangements where both employees and their manager understand workplace expectations and consistently apply related guidelines across the organization to support increased productivity and high morale. The Company will determine in its sole discretion, whether employees may be allowed or are requested to work remotely or at one of the Company's facilities, as appropriate or necessary. Regardless of workplace, employees are responsible for keeping their home address, work location, and emergency contact information updated in our HR system Workday for communication purposes and taxation accuracy.

Philosophy:

As a global company, we recognize that agility, innovation, and customer centricity are imperative to driving growth for our customers and company. To that end, the Company has created a culture that facilitates a collaborative environment and enables flexible work.

Effective October 2023, all new hires and existing employees in non-quota carrying, non-billable positions will be classified as a hybrid worker, and will be required to be in the office at least 3 days per week and work from home or off-site for a maximum of 2 days per week. Employees in quota carrying or billable roles (i.e., specific sales and professional services positions) or otherwise classified as remote in accordance with Company policy will continue to be classified as a remote worker. Employees in roles that are designed to be on site will be classified as an Office worker and expected to work from one of the Company's core offices.

Management is expected to bring employees together on a regular basis for meaningful, collaborative, and productive work to facilitate connection and engagement.

Workplace Employee Classification	Description
Hybrid worker	Non-quota carrying & non-billable role, working a requirement of at least 3 days in the office each week with the option to work a maximum of 2 days remotely (reviewed monthly to ensure a minimum of 12 days in office per month is maintained). External events or temporary office closures which may necessitate hybrid employees work from home for a period of time, does not alter employee's classification as a hybrid worker.
Remote worker	Quota carrying or billable role (i.e., specific sales and professional services positions) and those who live and work in an area in which the Company does not have a local office facility. Remote workers will use their primary home address as their work location.
Office worker	Role whose work duties are required to be performed at a Company office or facility.

2.0 Definitions

Any exception to workplace employee classifications will require functional Executive Leadership Team (ELT) approval.

3.0 Purpose

This policy's objectives are as follows:

- Ensure that all employees are supported and enabled to do their jobs
- Clarify the guidelines that govern hybrid workers vs. remote workers vs. office workers
- Establish and communicate effective, equitable, and fiscally responsible rules and procedures for remote office expenses
- Provide a process for requesting a transition from a hybrid or office worker to a remote worker

4.0 Responsibilities

At all times and regardless of work location, employees must fulfill their work responsibilities, goals, and objectives and must be reachable via telephone, email, and instant messenger during agreed-upon work hours. The employee will notify their manager when they leave their remote worksite, just as they would if working in the Company office and as applicable to their role. Productivity should not be negatively impacted while working remotely. Employees are expected to comply with all Company policies, procedures and guidelines and all applicable local, state and federal laws. Failure to comply with Company policies, procedures and guidelines, including adhering to the hybrid scheduling policy outlined herein may result in disciplinary action, up to and including termination of employment. Employees are also required to adhere to the Company's applicable time off policy for their jurisdiction, including any applicable requirements to submit requests for time off in applicable Company systems.

When visiting an Epicor office, employees should be using their assigned badge each time they enter. Entering behind someone or using the badge of other employees is a violation of company policy.

If there is an emergency at an employee's remote worksite that prevents them from working, such as a power or internet outage, the employee should notify their manager as soon as possible.

Employees who work remote are responsible for ensuring their office location data is accurately stated in the Company's systems. The office location for remote workers should be reflected as "remote". The office location for hybrid workers should reflect the Company office you're assigned to. If your office location needs to be updated, please contact your HR Business Partner.

Subject to applicable law, in the event that the Company determines a hybrid and/or remote work arrangement is not in the best interests of the Company for any reason, including but not limited to an employee's performance and productivity, the Company may terminate, change or modify an employee's designation as hybrid or remote upon written notice.

5.0 Office Set-up & Equipment

Hybrid Workers

Hybrid workers must establish an appropriate work environment within their home for work purposes. Employees will be provided the following to assist them in working remote successfully:

- A laptop and VPN access to the Company network

Additional expenses will be handled on a case-by-case basis. All expenses must be submitted and approved for reimbursement according to our standard expense procedures. The Company will not be responsible for costs associated with the initial setup of the employee's home office such as remodeling, furniture, or lighting, nor for repairs or modifications to the home office space.

The Company's IT department will support the Company-supplied computers, and associated hardware and software. Equipment supplied by the Company is to be used for business purposes only, and in accordance with all the Company policies and any agreements between the employee and the Company. The employee agrees to take appropriate action to protect the Company property from damage or theft. Upon termination of employment the Company property must be returned to the Company in good working order.

Remote Workers

Remote Workers will establish an appropriate work environment within their home for work purposes and will be provided with the following to assist them in working successfully from their home:

- A laptop, docking station, monitor, keyboard, mouse, multifunction printer/scanner (if needed and approved), standard computer headset and VPN access to the Company network. A second monitor will be provided if the employee's job function requires this. All equipment supplied will be based on current IT standards to ensure consistent support.
- The Company laptops have Microsoft Teams installed, which includes audio/telephony features. Certain employees, such as call center agents, may use other call center compatible telephony software that is installed as needed on their laptop.

The Company will not be responsible for costs associated with the initial setup of the employee's home office such as remodeling, additional desks and chairs, ceiling lights, nor for repairs or modifications to the home office space.

Remote workers and their manager should discuss any additional equipment needed to work remotely, such as hardware, software, UPS (uninterruptible power supply), etc. and agree upon what will be supplied/paid for by the Company and what will be purchased by the remote worker. Equipment supplied by the Company will conform to the established IT hardware and software standards. The Company's IT department will support the Company-supplied computers, printers, and associated hardware and software. Business required "Home Labs" or home development, or demo environments will be supported by the employee's department/business function.

Equipment supplied by the employee, if deemed appropriate by the organization, will be maintained by the employee. The Company accepts no responsibility for damage or repairs to employee-owned equipment. The Company reserves the right to make determinations as to appropriate equipment, subject to change at any time. Equipment supplied by the Company is to be used for business purposes only, and in accordance with the Company policies and any agreements between the employee and the Company. The employee agrees to take appropriate action to protect the Company property from damage or theft. Upon termination of employment all the Company property must be returned to the Company in good working order.

6.0 Ongoing Expenses

Office Supplies

Hybrid Workers

Hybrid workers should follow the standard process for obtaining office supplies they would follow if in the office, utilizing the Company on-hand supplies first before ordering additional supplies. Employees should discuss any expenses to be incurred with their manager prior to purchase. All expenses must be submitted and approved for reimbursement according to the Company's standard expense procedures. Employees should check the Company's existing office supply vendor relationships first to secure the best price for items to be purchased. US questions concerning this can be directed to: AustinFulfillment@epicor.com.)

Remote Workers

The Company will reimburse Remote Workers for minor office supplies (i.e., toner, paper, etc.). Employees should discuss any expenses to be incurred with their manager prior to purchase. All expenses must be submitted and approved for reimbursement according to the Company's standard expense procedures. Employees should check the Company's existing office supply vendor relationships first to secure the best price for items to be purchased. US questions concerning this can be directed to: AustinFulfillment@epicor.com.)

Internet

Internet access has become pervasive around the world and in-home internet contracts have become commonplace along with cable and other services. Therefore, employees, regardless of workplace classification, will be responsible for the cost of these services; they will not be reimbursable.

Phone

Employees, regardless of workplace classification, should utilize Microsoft Teams for their communication needs. Reimbursement for local landline/cable or cell phone service will not be provided.

7.0 Work Hours

The number of hours worked will not change regardless of workplace employee classification, nor will working remote affect the conditions of employment related to working hours unless otherwise agreed to by both, the employee and his/her manager. While working remote, employees must comply with all laws regarding working hours, required breaks, and meal periods.

Employees who report their daily work hours will be required to record all hours worked in the system designated by the Company. Hours worked in excess of those agreed upon by the employee and their manager will require advance email approval by the manager.

8.0 Requests to Transition from a Hybrid or Office Worker to a Remote Worker

The Company values the efficiency, collaboration, and cohesion gained when employees work together in an office. Therefore, requests to transition from a hybrid or office worker to a remote worker will be carefully considered in light of the requirements and responsibilities of the role and in accordance with our flexible work culture.

Procedure

- An employee may directly request to transition from a hybrid or office worker to a remote worker, or their manager can request this on behalf of the employee
- The manager and the HR Business Partner will discuss the reason for the request and any business impact.
- To take effect, a request to be a remote worker must be approved in email by the employee's manager, the manager's manager, their functional Executive Leadership Team member (ELT), and CEO.

Transitioning to a remote worker status can be temporary, such as while working on a short-term project, or for medical accommodations, to the extent practical and effective for the employee and the Company, and with the consent of the employee's health care provider, if appropriate. All temporary remote worker arrangements are made on a case-by-case basis, focusing on the business needs of the organization.

Hybrid workers transitioning to remote worker status will continue to use their existing computer equipment, with new or additional equipment supplied on an as-required basis.

For employees who are asked to permanently transition to a remote worker status due to a permanent office closure or similar situation, The Company will reimburse up to $500 USD (or local equivalent) for items such as a desk chair, desk, bookcase, desk lamp, and internet cabling extension. This amount will not be paid out as a lump sum.

Expenses should be submitted through the normal expense submission/approval process. All workspace expenses must be submitted and approved for reimbursement within 60-days of the employee's change of status and according to the Company's standard expense procedures. Employees should discuss all expenses to be incurred with their manager prior to purchase. If applicable, supplies available from office closures should be utilized first before the purchase of new equipment or supplies.

9. Safety and Security

An employee's remote workspace must be clean and free of obstructions and hazardous materials. For more information on safely setting up a workspace at home, please see the Addendum attached to this policy: Safety Checklist for Home Office.

Consistent with the Company's expectations of information asset security while in the office, employees who work remote must ensure the protection of proprietary company and customer information accessible from their home office. Steps include, but are not limited to, use of locked file cabinets, regular password maintenance, VPN usage, screensaver passwords, and any other steps appropriate for the job and the environment.

Employees must provide reasonable security of the data and information they manage at their home office site. Simple measures such as backing up data on company servers and logging out of your computer at the end of the workday, may prevent a burglary from becoming a major and potentially costly security breach. Employees who work remote must have the Company laptop data regularly backed up via the Company's workstation backup software.

10.0 Illness/Injuries

Employees who are sick while working remote should notify their manager of absences due to their illness and record their time accordingly.

Employees are normally covered by the Company's workplace injury insurance if they are injured while performing their duties for the Company within their home workspace. In most cases, injuries incurred in other parts of an employee's home will not be covered under such insurance. In the case of an injury that may be covered, employees must notify their manager immediately and complete all necessary and/or management-requested documents regarding the injury.

Employees are liable for any injuries sustained to visitors within the employee's home office work site.

11.0 Insurance/Taxes

Employees who work remote are encouraged to speak with their personal insurance agent to determine if it is advisable to obtain additional insurance coverage for working at their home location. Responsibility for understanding country/federal, state, and local government tax and other legal implications relating to the business use of a home office rests solely with the employee.

12.0 Dependent Care

Working remote is not designed to be a replacement for appropriate childcare. Employees who work remote should not act as primary caregivers for dependents during the agreed-upon work hours. This does not mean dependents must be absent from the home during the home office work hours, however, employees must make necessary dependent care arrangements to permit concentration on their work assignments.

Although remote schedules may be modified to accommodate childcare needs, the focus of the arrangement must remain on job performance and meeting business demands. Employees are encouraged to discuss their flexible work arrangement with family members and friends to ensure that appropriate expectations and boundaries are set. Emergency situations where this cannot be met, employees should inform their manager.

13.0 Exceptions

This policy cannot cover all instances where it may be appropriate to grant an exception under the policy. If an employee wants to submit an exception to this policy, they should submit an email request outlining the requirement (e.g., business role or service) and purpose justifying the exception to their management. Any exception to this policy will require functional Executive Leadership Team (ELT) approval.

14.0 Revision History

Date	Contact	Description
10/1/2018	Human Resources – Deb Ingram	Updated to reflect work from office culture; internet reimbursement exception allowances removed, effective 10/1/18
10/2/2018	Human Resources – Deb Ingram	Home phone reimbursement exception allowances removed, effective 11/1/18
04/01/2021	Human Resources – Deb Ingram	Policy reviewed and updated to reflect new The Company branding; pandemic verbiage added, and procedures updated
08/01/2022	Human Resources - Tyler Yeoman	Policy updated to reflect global flexible work changes
10/01/2023	Human Resources – Natalie Canadeo	Policy updated to reflect global flexible work changes
10/01/2024	Human Resources – Natalie Canadeo	Policy updated to reflect requirements of in-office attendance for hybrid workers

15.0 Disclaimer/Copyright

This document is an internal working policy paper of Epicor (the “Company”). It contains confidential and other proprietary information which is the Company property. The contents of this document are for informational purposes only and are subject to change without notice. The Company makes no representations or warranties regarding the enclosed information. This document and/or its contents may not under any circumstance be distributed outside of the Company. Any copies of this document possessed by an employee should be destroyed or returned to the Company upon separation from the Company. The Company, Epicor, and the Company logo are trademarks of Epicor Software Corporation, registered in the United States and other countries. All other trademarks acknowledged. Copyright © 2021 Epicor Software Corporation.

FOR INTERNAL EPICOR USE ONLY – NOT TO BE COPIED OR DISTRIBUTED OUTSIDE OF EPICOR

16.0 Addendum: Safety Checklist for Home Office

The following checklist is recommended for use by each employee in organizing their home office work site. It is the responsibility of the employee to review this checklist to ensure the safety of their home office.

Home Office Work Site

☐	Employee has a clearly defined workspace that is kept clean and orderly.
☐	The work area is adequately illuminated with lighting directed toward the side or behind the line of vision, not in front or above it.
☐	Exits are free of obstructions.
☐	Supplies and equipment (both departmental and employee-owned) are in good condition.
☐	The area is well ventilated and heated.
☐	Storage is organized to minimize risks of fire and spontaneous combustion.
☐	All extension cords have grounding conductors.
☐	Exposed or frayed wiring and cords are repaired or replaced immediately upon detection.
☐	Electrical enclosures (switches, outlets, receptacles, junction boxes) have tight-fitting covers or plates.
☐	Surge protectors are used for computers, fax machines, and printers.
☐	Heavy items are securely placed on sturdy stands close to walls.
☐	Computer components are kept out of direct sunlight and away from heaters.

Emergency Preparedness

☐	Emergency phone numbers (hospital, fire department, police department) are immediately available to the employee.
☐	A first aid kit is easily accessible and replenished as needed.
☐	Portable fire extinguishers are easily accessible and serviced as needed.
☐	If applicable, an earthquake preparedness kit is easily accessible and maintained in readiness.

Ergonomics

☐	Desk, chair, computer, and other equipment are of appropriate design and arranged to eliminate undue strain on the body.
--------------------------	--